FIRST REGULAR SESSION OF THE FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS-A LONG AND STORMY SESSION ANTICIPATED-MONEY-THE NEXT PRESI-DENT-PERSONAL-HOW THE VIRGINIA SIT-UATION IS REGARDED IN WASHINGTON-PENSIONERS-SHERMAN'S REPORT-THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE-OTHER ITEMS. [From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, November 29 .- The Fortysixth Congress commences its first regular session on Monday, but the opening proceedings will be tame, because both bouses completed their permanent organization at the extra session. The impression prevails, however, that the session will be lengthy, and by February stormy. Mr. Cabell remarked to me this afternoon that he thought it would be long and tedious. Frank Hurd, of Ohio, one of the ablest Democrats in Congress, but not one of the best politicians by a great deal, is in favor of making the fight of last session over again. When told that if the Democrats persist in their demands in regard to deputy to defeat them by vetoes, he said: "Then the interests of the country require that our party should remain firm in the maintenance of the position assumed at the extra session in behalf of free elections." Mr. Hurd is not by any means alone in the views he has been freely expressing since his arrival.

SOFT MONEY AND GREENBACKS. In spite of the fact that General Warner is already busily talking up his silver bill, the Greenbackers and soft-money men of both parties are very quiet, and do not discuss finance unless drawn out, and then they substantially acknowledge that a fortunate combination of circumstances have given us the balance of trade and increased the volume of currency until resumption is at least a temporary success. They are quick, however, to contend that John Sherman is not entitled to credit, but is only like a lucky man at cards. When I notice the fact that Colonel Billy Burwell was right and Sherman and Raum so far wrong in olored people before the election, advising | their predictions last winter as to the effect of the reduction of the tobacco-tax, I am inclined to think the Secretary of the Treasury is far from being an infallible financier, trusted? THE PRESIDENTIAL SITUATION.

It is clear that the bulk of the Democrats here are either for Seymour or Bayard, but Hendricks, Hancock, and Judge Field each have a following. Everybody says the nominee for Vice-President must come from Indiana, in the event Mr. Hendricks is not nominated for President, and Hendricks, McDonald, and English are mentioned. English will be remembered as a prominent member of the House in years gone by, and the only objection to him is that he is a millionaire. Although Mr. Frye, of Maine, and others are pushing Mr. Blaine's claims with commendable energy, and Mr. Sherman continues to press his own, the idea prevails that the Republicans will be forced to nominate Grant. Northern Democrats seem earnestly to desire this, but southerners do not entirely agree with them. Leading Republicans are not carried away with the result ourt during the month was $25.50, of of recent elections, and fully appreciate the fact that New York is still Democratic, and as long as that is the case and Indiana remains true to the party of the Constitution, ing. in Adelaide street. When the firemen neither Grant nor any other Republican is sure of an election.

> THE GRANT BOOM-WHAT CONGRESSMEN SAY OF IT.

I have seen no Democratic congressman yet who knows anything of a Grant boom among members of his party at home. Said one to-day: "Do you suppose the people years ago by the stock company, and was have forgotten Belknap, Robeson & Co., or that the oppression which was visited upon the South during Grant's administration has passed from their memory?" Said another: "It is like the rumor that the old Whig party was to be revived."
